Letter excerpt

As we head into the second year of the COVID-19 pandemic, health and wellbeing is at the forefront of the nation's consciousness. This year as we adjust and move forward, and into a likely election year, it is essential that the role of dietitians, food and nutrition in health and quality of life are considered.

Dietitians Australia has long advocated for recognition of this. Our recent work includes:

- Telehealth – Position paper on the benefits of telehealth including access to dietetic services
- Aged care – Series of 8 position statements on the role of food and nutrition in aged care, presented at the National Congress on food, nutrition and the dining experience in aged care
- Mental health – Briefing paper on the role of food and nutrition in mental health
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health – Submission in response to the Senate Inquiry into Food Pricing and Food Security in Remote Indigenous Communities
- Disability – Briefing paper on the provision of food and nutrition for people with disability

- Sustainability – Briefing paper to support the prominent integration of sustainability principles within future iterations of the Australian Dietary Guidelines
