

National Digital Health Strategy - Submission 2021

Submitted to the Australian Digital Health Agency (November 2021).

Dietitians Australia has given feedback on the National Digital Health Strategy.

The COVID-19 pandemic highlighted the need to offer healthcare through digital services including telehealth. Our submission is in response to the Digital Health Strategy consultation with recommendations on digital health services and dietetics.

Our submission discusses telehealth as a key service delivery platform for dietitians and allied health professionals. And discusses its benefits and challenges.

We have offered 9 recommendations for providing healthcare through digital means including telehealth and data collection.
