

NSW ELECTION SCORECARD 2023

Dietitians Australia asked the NSW Labor Party, the Liberals and the Greens to complete an election scorecard, rating their commitment to 3 key election requests. Responses were received from Cate Faehrmann, Greens MP and Health Spokesperson, The Hon. Brad Hazzard MP, Minister for Health and Ryan Park MP, Shadow Minister for Health. Read the full responses on our website.

We rated their responses to determine the scores below.

Fund every community and mental health service across NSW to include Accredited Practising Dietitian (APD) services	X	1/2	✓
Increase the NSW Health dietetic workforce in public hospitals, community health, outpatient, justice, disability, maternal, newborn and child health, and aged care services	1/2	1/2	✓
Invest in preventive health by committing 5% of the NSW health budget to preventive health and implementing actions from both the National Preventive Health Strategy and National Obesity Strategy	1/2	✓	✓
Establish a state government food security and nutrition plan and council	X	1/2	✓
Improve the delivery and consistency of Home Enteral Nutrition provided to NSW residents through establishing dedicated services within NSW Health and reducing out-of-pocket costs for consumers	X	1/2	✓

Scorecard key:

- ✓ Response aligns with, supports or commits to the Dietitians Australia election request
- 1/2 Response partially aligns with the Dietitians Australia election requests or include elements that support the request, but extent of commitment is unclear or poorly defined
- X There is no policy or commitment to the Dietitians Australia election request or there is no detail provided on that request to determine a response
